Case #	Description	(A)ttempted, (C)ompleted, (F)elony, (M)isdemeanor	Officer
	Officers arrived in the area and located the two vans quickly. Both vans parked on the public street appeared to have been sitting for some time. There was build up on the windshields and the rest of the vehicles from the elements. There was debris building under the tires, and plants growing around the vehicles. The red mini van had a flat tire, and debris began to flow over the top of the tire where it laid flat/deflated on the ground. While tagging the vehicles officers observed multiple cats with collars in that area. One of the cats had been seen in the gold van while officers were walking around it (cat accessed van through busted out window). Most of the cats appeared to be thin, but not dangerously thin at first glance. One of the cats did stand out to officers. The cat was black in color. The cat sat in the middle of the road as cars came through and did not move. The cat had missing spots of fur as the fur was thinning out. Officers got out of the car and began to get the cat to move out of the roadway. The cat meowed at first, not phased. The cat then stood. The cat was slim in the waist and hipbones were visible when you stood over the cat. The cat was ear tipped (ear cut to show it was fixed) but had a collar. It allowed officers to pet it and eventually grab it by the scruff; carrying it out of the road. Officers later noticed the cat had problems with one of its hind legs, slightly dragging it as it walked. Officers learned the cat's name was bear. Officers did speak with the owner of the home the cats appeared to stay around (a sign with pictures of the cats was found on a tree in the front yard). The homeowner informed officers that her son is manger of the cat colony. She helps her son feed the cats, but he ultimately manages them. She stated there are others that help as well, but later made it seem like they do not have as much help as they once did. The cats were said to be between the ages of 10-18 years of age. Said to go to the vet for shots and the son goes to the home 4 times a day to feed and water them. Bear was detained and later taken to the vet by animal control due to its welfare.
